CHILDHOOD DAY MEMORIES

When I was 1 year old, This incident happened.
My mother made me sleep. After 2 hours I realised I was alone in that big bed Kingdom without my mom. I searched every nook and corner. Then I thought of getting down. But the floor looked like a deep well. I tried and tried but my feet could not reach. I deeply thought how to overcome the crisis. I saw a big log which I learnt after, was called a pillow.
With all my might ,I threw 1 log but I could not reach. Again I went to my kingdom and threw another log over the floor. Even though I tried I still couldn't reach. Again I went to my palace and threw one more log and thought wisely. Then I threw a big marshmallow which I later learnt was a quilt. Then I successfully overcame the crisis and step down from my kingdom, then entered another kingdom known as the kitchen. Then I saw my entire world-my mom. As soon as I saw, her, a smile spread across my face, and without a thought, I crawled to her arms. Because of my little wit, she showered me with kisses & love

MY CHILDHOOD DAYS

I remember mornings bright and new
With laughter, games, and skies so blue
I played with dad and ran so fast
Those happy moments always last

I drew on walls with crayons bright
Mom scolded me but smiled i that night
We shared our snacks and played all day
In parks where dreams would find their way

In play school fun and colour days
Annual Shows and joyful plays.
We sang and danced with our hearts so free,
Those times still mean the world to me

Field trips, holidays, songs and cheer
Are memories I hold so dear.
Though I have grown up and time has flown

I went to the park with friends each day we'd swing and slide and shout "Hooray!"
We raced on grass and chased the breeze
So happy, wild and full of joy
My childhood stayed my very own

LAST DAY OF CHILDHOOD.

The last day, before it turned all heavy.
Where the tears were fake, not smiles
Where the sun shone brighter than the stars.
where silence didn't feel like screams.
Where even the wilted flower bloomed of love.

The Knife was sharper than the sword
The sword was sharper then the dagger
Crept slowly, words claiming to be the sharpest
But, silence laughed knowingly at 11:54 then struck 12
And the sad laugh turned true

"My mind had a million eyes but my heart, only one.....
Yet the light of my whole life died, when she was gone

TO INNOCENCE

I hear your name in every breath,
See your face in every crowd
I know you linger somewhere,
So why must you leave?

You came barefoot into my mornings with a smile that promised forever
Oh, it stained all of my summers
Tell me, are all vows made to be broken?

Darling, don't you let go
My sky turns to a childlike dream at the sight of you
Rewrote all these blues
So, how can you un-entwine from my world?

Lost in the haze of a promise,
I didn't know it yet but I loved you
On those rainy days
And all the times I laughed before fear,
You were there

Darling, Stay a little longer in my trembling palms
Let me borrow those eyes.
Just one more time
For when you go,
the light will follow

Let me hold your hand
One last time
Before the world teaches me its cruel ways
